

TWO FATAL DRINKS.

One Man Takes Whisky and Another Swallows Carbolic Acid.

A DRAUGHT THAT WAS NOT WINE.

Turner Took a Quart of Wine and It Was Too Much for Him.

TOOK THE DOSE ONCE TOO OFTEN

In Allegheny there were two fatalities from the drinking of poison yesterday. Arthur Croft drank an enormous dose of carbolic acid, and Hugh Turner swallowed a quart of whisky. The carbolic acid proved to be as deadly as the whisky.

Croft was a tinner, living at No. 7 Ellisworth street, Allegheny. Owing to the recent fire at Fleming & Hamilton's he was dismissed by that firm last Saturday, and the fact that he had lost his position caused many to think that he had poisoned himself intentionally. His wife does not believe this, and other circumstances indicate that he drank the acid by mistake. He was not feeling well Sunday evening, and his wife gave him a drink from a bottle of wine, which she then hid.

He Found His Death. Yesterday morning, after cheerily eating his breakfast, Croft went upstairs to prepare to go out and seek work. Seeing a large bottle on the organ, he supposed it was the wine. The room was darkened by the closed shutters, and the color of the fluid was not noticeable. Croft swallowed a large drink, and immediately realizing that he had drunk something much more fiery than even whisky he ran down stairs, crying, "Lizzie, I am poisoned."

The wife alarmed the neighbors, and while one of them gave Croft a big drink of salt water, another called Dr. C. Cronble. The physician gave the man a strong antidote, which partially relieved his pain. He was then sent to the Allegheny General Hospital. There, after suffering great agony, Croft died at about 10 o'clock.

Drank a Quart of Whisky. Turner was a Manchester laborer who had been for several years a strong drinker. At times he would leave the tippie alone and work hard for several weeks, and would then catch up by reveling in liquor for two or three days. About a year ago he drank a quart of whisky in a few hours, and fell into a stupor at the residence of Dr. Cronble. The physician called to administer antidotes. On the following day Turner was about as chipper as ever. Last Sunday evening he repeated this operation, but this time with deadly result. He procured a quart of whisky, drank it in about two hours and became unconscious.

About 6 o'clock Mrs. Turner sent for Dr. Redick, who lives near on Pennsylvania avenue, and the physician revived the man with drugs. Two hours later Turner died. The physician was again called, but he said his medicines were no longer of any service. The dead man leaves a wife and three children, with very little to keep them from starvation.

HIS LAST DIVE.

George Shelter Struck His Head on a Barge and Died. George Shelter, aged 22, a glass worker, was drowned August 6 o'clock. He was while bathing in the Monongahela river near the foot of Thirty-fourth street. Shelter had been giving an exhibition to his friends of his skill as a diver. He had dived under one of three barges which were lying near the bank and announced his intention of diving under two of the barges. When he plunged into the water one of his companions noticed that he struck his head against the bottom of the barge. He did not appear again, and at the last sight his body had not been recovered.

Shelter lived with his parents on Twenty-fourth street. The affair was reported to the police.

A Fawcough Squabble.

Joseph Shanholz, who owns a second-hand clothing store at the corner of Penn avenue and Sixteenth street, was arrested yesterday on a warrant sworn out before Alderman Burns by Constant Koskock, charging him with assault and battery. Koskock went into Shanholz's store to purchase a suit of clothes, and when he was the suit, they got into a quarrel over the price. Koskock alleges that Shanholz struck him and knocked him down and put him out of the shop. Shanholz gave $500 bail for a hearing to-day.

She Is Not a Happy Wife.

Johanna Solinski entered suit before Alderman Burns yesterday, charging her husband, John, with assault and battery. They reside on Twentieth street. She alleges that they do not live happily together. He comes home drunk, she says, abuses her and takes what little money she makes by sewing and washing. Lately his abuse has become worse, and last Sunday he gave her a terrible beating. He was committed to jail to await a hearing next Tuesday.

THE PLANETS.

Mars and Jupiter, to Be Shown Free All This Week. Mr. Henry Berger, the furniture man, will be pleased to meet his friends and customers at his handsome private observatory located on the roof of the Observatory Hill Electric Railway, and have them view a first-class class of the planets through his large equatorial telescope, which is operated by electrically controlled clockwork. His lenses are made of the finest optical glass known to the world, and are of the highest quality and are acknowledged to be the finest and most complete instrument of its kind in the State.

The observatory will be open only between the hours of 10 and 11 every clear night. Free admission to all. In good position for observation and Jupiter in fair position. Tickets will be required by all (in order to avoid a rush) and can only be had at Mr. Berger's place, between Sixth and 9th Liberty street, near Sixth avenue.

Grocers Know a Good Thing.

That's why all grocers who desire to suit their customers and thereby extend their trade sell the celebrated "Royal" and "Our Best" brands made by the Iron City Milling Company. Positively no fine flour exists and their tremendous sales are but a case of true merit justly rewarded.

PUTTING IN THE FOUNDATIONS.

A Start to Be Made on the Carnegie Library for Men. Bids for the contract of building the foundations for the big free library at Schenley Park are being received by Chairman James R. Scott, of the Building Committee. No advertisement for bids was necessary, as contractors came in in numerous numbers and the competition seems to be vigorous. Mr. Scott said yesterday that the contract would be awarded next week and work commenced a few days later. The foundations will be built as high as the grade line before winter sets in. The top of the walls will then be covered in and the foundations will be allowed to settle.

In the meantime bids for the superstructure and completion of the buildings will be advertised for and the contracts awarded, so that when the spring of 1923 comes the work will be well advanced and carried forward with all possible speed.
